To the American Booksellers

Net Fiction!!!

During the spring of 1907 at the Annual Convention of the American Booksellers' Association a unanimous resolution was passed asking the publishers to issue fiction at net prices. With the request of the Booksellers before us, we decided last July to issue a bright, spontaneous book we were then publishing at a net price. "Bachelor Betty" was published at a net price. The booksellers and the book-buying public seemed to have liked the net price system. "Bachelor Betty," although by an unknown author, has continued to sell, and we now have the Third Edition ready. In view of the success of this net book, we have decided to issue Violet Jacob's new book, "The History of Aythan Waring," at a net price.

Third Edition Ready.

Bachelor Betty

By WINIFRED JAMES. 12mo. $1.00 net.

One of those spontaneous, intimate books that has grown popular by personal recommendation from one to another.

What the critics say:

"A delightful story."—Baltimore American.

"Its frank enjoyment of life, its humorous appreciation of false standards and forced situations, and even its thread of romance with its simple issue are genuinely enjoyable."—Life.

"Bachelor Betty purports to be her own historian. In an engaging manner, with abundant vivacity and humor, she relates her experiences. Bachelor Betty has the art by means of comment, anecdote and detail to amuse us, and it was by detail that Robinson Crusoe was able to make his book so remarkably interesting."—New York Sun.

"A blithe little tale, full of the humor and joy of living, touched by a wistful tenderness and animated by a delightful piquancy. A study of a plucky girl."—Chicago Daily News.

"This is an undeniably entertaining book."—N. Y. Evening Post.

"Frankly, we like Bachelor Betty very much."—London Standard.

"Miss James is a keen observer of human nature. All her characters are made living by some touch or phrase which renders the least important of them a personality."—Academy.

"It is a good story full of human interest and human emotions, of an admirable womanly woman."—Post Standard, Syracuse.

"Such a fund of spontaneous humor brightens the pages of Bachelor Betty that the man who could read it without laughing, and that heartily, ought to be preserved in a museum."—The Reader.

To be Published January 25.

The History of Aythan Waring

By VIOLET JACOB. 12mo, cloth. 380 pages. Net, $1.25.

This novel is a study of character, remarkable for variety, and distinctly and well drawn. The hero, Aythan Waring, is a fine moral type, with strong natural characteristics. The heroine, loved of Aythan, is a beautiful creation. They undergo the most severe trial conceivable; it is the central act in the drama, and the play of character in it is a very high order of writing—deep and intense—yet effortless and relieved by a fine reserve.

The characters are numerous, and, as has been said, of great variety. There is in them the freshness of genuine originality. They represent many phases of life, high and low, and have in them a revelation of human nature in such diversity as is rarely met with in one book.

The Princess Nadine, with a Russian father and an American mother, who was the daughter of "Lucky Dick," an enormously rich California miner, has many contradictory characteristics, which the author illustrates through her love affairs. She is trying to arrange a match between Nadine and a Russian Prince, who will eventually be king of a petty Russian dependency, when an American appears upon the scene—a man of great wealth, somewhat of a political adventurer, but in the main a gentleman. He and Nadine are mutually attracted, and many plots and counterplots result.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1907.

THE books recorded in 1907 amounted to 9620 titles, the greatest number THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has ever recorded in one year. Notwithstanding the financial panic, which marked the closing months of the year, booksellers reported a profitable season, little influenced by the money stringency which affected nearly every other business. The selling almost came up to that of 1906, the "banner" year of the book trade. The unusual number of new books, speaks of the industry of writers and publishers.

The year, taken all in all, was not a fruitless one. If the percentage of important works was small in comparison with the output, we may still claim valuable additions to our literature in every department. Biography, a class which grows year by year in popular favor, was enriched by many important as well as delightful gossipy volumes not only from American but from British authors. History and Travel, strongly colored by newly awakened interest in matters oriental; works on political economy, discussing the innumerable problems of life and living and government agitating the public mind, contributed much to the existing literature on these subjects. We could well afford to have fewer books for the young than in previous years, since those that were brought out were so much improved in text and illustration. The favorite reading of all good Americans is no doubt the novel, judging from the immense number made here or sent us from English authors. The first, rather crude works of numerous young and unknown authors, with much rubbish, that will not stand the test of time is embraced in the figures. On the other hand, many strongly-written original works from American novelists marked the fiction output—works that had as great a vogue, and received as flattering appreciation in England as in this country. In return, "our kin across the sea," while sending us many finished examples of the best that was produced by their leading novelists, astonished us by a line of meretricious fiction—which, when not of questionable morality, were disagreeable pathological studies of morbid or abnormal conditions, utterly out of place in the pages of a novel. It is to be regretted that these works were chiefly written by women.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich, American poet and novelist, stands first in the line of noted literary people who passed away during 1907. He was one of the last of the old school of writers. Wendell Phillips Garrison, son of the famous abolitionist and for forty-one years an editor of The Nation, ended a long and useful career. The well-known author and journalist Moncure D. Conway died in Paris, as did Theodore Tilton, poet, editor and lecturer. E. H. Crosby, writer on social subjects, and Angelo Heilprin, one of our adopted citizens, famous as naturalist and explorer, are to be counted among our losses. Several popular novelists will be heard from no more. Mary J. Holmes, the author of thirty-nine novels, laid down her pen, as did Julia Magruder, Archibald Clavering Gunter, and Ella Farnam Pratt, writer of young people's books.

The foremost scientist of Great Britain—Lord Kelvin—died at the end of the year. David Masson, essayist and literary critic, and "Ian Maclaren"—Dr. John Watson—both known and admired in all English-speaking countries are sincerely mourned. Missing from the ranks of famous English novelists and journalists are David Christie Murray and Joseph Hatton. The great English war correspondent, Sir W. Howard Russell, is no more. Italy lamented the death of Giosué Carducci, her greatest poet; and France has lost André Theuriet and Hector Malot, her famous novelists, and Joris Karl Huysmans, the celebrated literary artist.

The summary that follows aims to point out the leading books of the year—not only the literary achievements but the popular successes.

FICTION.

In American fiction, the trend was still strongly towards problem novels of the social and personal life, as Mrs. Wharton's incisive and powerful "The Fruit of the Tree," culminating in the ending of cruel suffering, by an overdose of morphine, sympathetically administered by the trained nurse; Mrs. Burnett's more warmly written "The Shuttle," dealing with the unfortunate English marriage of an American girl; Anne D. Sedgwick's admirable study of selfishness in the person of her beautiful heroine, a self-righteous young reformer; Robert W. Chambers' picture of the romances of "The Younger Set" of New York, involving the many-sided divorce question, and "The Tents of Wickedness," a New York story in the same vein as the preceding, by the author of "Rutledge"—Mrs. Miriam Cole Harris—better known to a former generation.

Pathetic transcripts from real life are leading motives in Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' (Mrs. Ward) "Walled In," set in a university town, in Mary Eleanor Wilkins' (Mrs. Freeman) "By the Light of a Soul," an intimate story of a young girl's heart, and "The Old Peabody Pew," a Christmas romance of a country church, by Kate Douglas Wiggin. "The Windfall," an unexpected inheritance that comes to the manager of a travelling circus, by Miss Murfree ("Charles Egbert Craddock") has its scene in the Great Smoky Mountains. That veteran writer Francis Hopkinson Smith realized his ideal of a hero with "The Romance of an Old-Fashioned Gentleman," and Gertrude Atherton in "Ancestors" used as a background to a clever love story the great earthquake and fire of San Francisco, with the city's present corrupt political conditions.

The evils wrought by trusts, the unequal distribution of wealth, the building of great railroads, and other subjects pertaining to American life, found reflection in many novels. The restitution made by the head of a great coal monopoly to his weaker victims is depicted in "The Giant's Strength" by Basil King; "Empire Builders," by Francis Lynde and "The Iron Way," by Sarah P. Carr, are spirited narratives of the dramatic building of two great western railroads. The often debasing influence of great wealth is illustrated with Mrs. Bacon's "In High Places," Brand Whitlock's "The Turn of the Balance," and David G. Phillips' "The Second Generation;" Thomas W. Lawson's sensational "Friday, the Thirteenth," epitomized a tragedy of the stock market. Ranching, a cowboy's life, and the great wheat problem of the Canadian northwest are brought to the fore in Bindloss's "Winston of the Prairie," and Andy Adams' "Reed Anthony, Cowman." "The Convert," by Elizabeth Robins takes up the story of woman's suffrage in its present aspects especially in London.

Stories of pure adventure were in the majority. Leading is Francis Marion Crawford's "Arethusa" having its scene in Constantinople in the Fourteenth century; "The Brass Bowl," by L. J. Vance, the theft of valuable jewels furnishing the central motive; "The Captain of the Kansas," by Louis Tracy revelling in thrilling experiences on the sea. Built up largely upon the methods of "The Prisoner of Zenda" are "The Port of Missing Men," an imaginary conspiracy against the throne of Austria, by Meredith Nicholson, rich in romance and fine character sketching; "The Princess Virginia," by Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, a love story of an English princess, with the ruler of a kingdom not to be found on the map of Europe; and "The Stolen Throne," by Herbert Kaufman and May I. Fish and "The Kingmakers," by Armiger Barclay, the scenes of the two latter existing only through the writers' inventive powers.

Baroness von Hutten, who is by birth an American, failed in "The Halo" to make as favorable impression as in "Pam" and its sequel "Pam Decides." "The Daughter of Anderson Crow," by George B. McCutcheon and "Hilma," by W. T. Eldridge, stories of mystery, were among the "best sellers." "Emerald and Ermine," by the author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress," is a story of Brittany. "The Mayor's Wife," by Anna Katharine Green (Mrs. Rohlfs) is a detective story, and "His Courtship," by Mrs. Helen Martin carries the reader to the little known environment of the Pennsylvania "Dutch."

Volumes of the American short story were not numerous. Worth quoting and remembering are William Dean Howells' "Between the Dark and the Daylight," stories dealing with strange manifestations of mentality; "Under the Crust," seven of Thomas Nelson Page's latest and best stories; "The veiled Lady" and other men and women, by Francis Hopkinson Smith; "The Fair Lavinia and Others," studies from life of the New England woman, by Mary Eleanor Wilkins (Mrs. Freeman); "The Thinking Machine," by Jacques Futrelle, illustrates the wonderful gifts of a great scientist and logician, in detecting crime; other detective stories of a high class are embraced in "Norroy, Diplomatic Agent," by G. Bronson-Howard. Myra Kelly, in her experience as a teacher on the east side, New York, gathered many odd and amusing stories, now issued under the title "Wards of Liberty."

The notable additions to English fiction were reprinted on this side, or imported in limited editions. The author of "The Four Feathers"—Alfred E. W. Mason—has to his credit two charming new novels. "The Broken Road," an elaborate story of the India of to-day, based on racial inequality and the building of a road destined to be the key of the Indian situation was published at the end of the year; "Running Water," an earlier work, portrays the fascination of Alpine climbing. Siberia is the scene of "The Long Road," by John Oxenham, a tale of England and Egypt at the middle of the nineteenth century. "The Weavers," by Sir Gilbert Parker, is symbolical in its title, as is "The Stooping Lady," picturing an unequal marriage at about the same period, written by Maurice Hewlett. The Boer war strongly colors "The Far Horizon," although it is characterized by a dreamy, poetical style that discusses the intellectual problems of an everyday man; it is the first time "Lucas Malet" (Mrs. Harrison) has broken silence since writing "Sir Richard Calmady." Robert Hichens found readers with "Barbary Sheep," leaving "The Garden of Allah," nevertheless his finest effort. "Alice-for-Short" was the successor of W. F. De Morgan's "Joseph Vance," showing like that novel, the influence of Charles Dickens. "The Helpmate," by May Sinclair, is a strongly conceived composition in which a good woman's unforbearing attitude towards the sins of her husband's past, is most disagreeably presented. E. F. Benson describes an ideal love in "Sheaves"—age being the only way in which the couple is not mated. "The Altar Fire," by A. C. Benson, is one of his tranquil thoughtful stories of modern life. Mrs. Flora Annie Steel in "A Sovereign Remedy," aims entertainingly to prove the power of money, while the Baroness Orczy in "The Gates of Kamt" carries two young Englishmen through a brilliant series of adventures in an Egyptian city long since lost and forgotten. To the history of the year belongs Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks," whose repulsive plot has met with wide-spread criticism.

Translations of novels from foreign languages were not notable. A recognized leader in the modern school of Dutch thought, Frederick Van Eeden, was represented by "The Quest," an elaboration of the allegory of De Kleine Johannes the young seeker after truth, who would solve the riddle of the universe. Russia is represented by "Mother" from Maxim Gorky, depicting the great revolutionary movements of the last few years. From the German came Nathan Galizier's "The Sorceress of Rome," completing the trilogy of romances of the life of mediæval Italy, and Adolf Streckfuss's story of a crime, "The Lonely House" the last work of the veteran translator Mrs. A. L. Wister. From the Italian Fogazzaro's "The Sinner" (Piccolo mondo moderno), bringing to an end his trilogy of Rome, and his Malombra, translated under the title of "The Woman," a psychological study of a wholly undisciplined character. Tolstoy's "Twenty-Three Tales," offers some of the best literary work of the great Russian.

BIOGRAPHY, MEMOIRS, CORRESPONDENCE.

"The Reminiscences of Carl Schurz," was one of the "leaders" in American biography. As a political agitator and reformer, as a writer and later as a general on the northern side during the Civil War, as a successful journalist, as a statesman and diplomat, this gifted German-American left an enviable record. Journalism was represented by biographies of two equally noted men—, "Life and Letters of Edwin Lawrence Godkin," the former well-known editor of The Nation, prepared by Rollo Ogden, now editor of the New York Evening Post and General Wilson's "Life of Charles A. Dana," late editor and proprietor of the New York Sun. Great events in our history, and distinguished men who made history, are considered in both works giving them permanent value. General Fessenden's "Life and Public Services of William Pitt Fessenden," Secretary of the Treasury in 1864 in succession to Chase, Oberholtzer's memoir of "Jay Cooke, Financier of the Civil War" and "The Life and Public Services of George Luther Sterns," written by one of his sons, are important contributions to our war annals of the successful efforts of men, whose battles were not won with bayonets. Several autobiographies and volumes of reminiscences from old soldiers and government officials are of unique interest. "The Spirit of Old West Point, 1855-1862" from General Schaff, is an inspiring story of the spirit of patriotism that fired young Americans in the opening days of our war; "Autobiography of Oliver Otis Howard, Major-General United States Army" and "Grant, Lincoln and the Freedmen," by General Eaton, recall many campaigns of the Civil War, in which the writers were conspicuous figures; "Lincoln in the Telegraph Office," throws new light upon a much discussed personality. It is the work of D. Homer Bates, manager of the War Department telegraph office, who saw the President almost daily from 1861 to 1866.

"Antoinette Sterling," the famous American contralto, had her triumphs given permanent form by her son Malcolm Sterling Mac Kinlay, his work embracing sketches of many of her contemporaries in the art world. James Morgan's biography of "Theodore Roosevelt" is impartial, up-to-date, and most delightfully written.

The various biographical series, were enriched by new volumes. "The True Patrick Henry," by George Morgan, was added to The "True" Biographies; "Leading American Soldiers," by R. M. Johnston, to Biographies of Leading Americans; "Henry Hudson," by Edgar Bacon to American Men of Energy Series; "Amerigo Vespucci" and "Ferdinand Magellan," both by F. A. Ober, to Heroes of American History; "Frederick Douglass," by Booker Washington to American Crisis Biographies; "Ralph Waldo Emerson," by G. E. Woodberry in English Men of Letters Series, and "In the Days of Goldsmith," by Tudor Jenks, to Lives of Great Writers.

The reprints of English biographies were very small, many scholarly works, however, having been imported in limited editions. "The Letters of Queen Victoria" and "Father and Son," an intimate revelation of the human heart are among the notable works. Although published anonymously, Edmund Gosse is now known to be the author of the latter. It sheds illuminating light upon his early years, under the roof of a rigid, Puritanical father. Rich and varied information relative to the life and character of the founder of Harvard University, is embraced in "John Harvard and His Times," by H. C. Shelley. Arthur Tilley's estimate of "François Rabelais," strongly flavored with the optimism of its subject, is a number of French Men of Letters. "The Friends of Voltaire," by S. G. Tallentyre, who wrote a life of "Voltaire," is made up of ten sketches of Voltaire's intimates.

"An Artist's Reminiscences," by Walter Crane, presents in delightful form details of the personalities of the great men of England of the past fifty years. Sarah Tytler's "Countess of Huntingdon and Her Circle" is a study of the friend of the Wesleys and Whitefield. Miss Shield and Andrew Lang co-operated in a new and modern biography of the last "pretender" to the English throne—James Francis Edward Stuart—entitled "The King Over the Water." Francis H. Gribble put his name to two works in new lines of investigation—"Madame de Stael and Her Lovers" and "George Sand and Her Lovers"—full of gossip and recently unearthed facts.

Sarah Bernhardt's "Memoirs of My Life," translated from the French, are her personal, professional and social recollections as woman and artist. "Memoirs of the Comtesse de Boigne," edited from the original French manuscript by Charles Nicoullaud, is a vivid picture of French life and society during the years 1781 to 1819. The subject of a work by the Marquis de Ségur—"Julie de Lespinasse"—recalls Mrs. Humphry Ward's delightful novel of "Lady Rose's Daughter," said to be the fascinating "Julie." Victor Hugo's "Intellectual Autobiography," are the last words from the celebrated author, epitomizing his ideas on literature, philosophy and religion. Hitherto unpublished letters between "Madame de Stael and Benjamin Constant" is a human document of poignant interest. From the German we received Edith Cuthell's life of "Wilhelmina, Margravine of Baireuth," the loving and much loved sister of Frederick the Great; the seemingly inexhaustible subject of "Napoleon" was again taken up by Max Lenz; the second volume of Bielschowsky's authoritative "Life of Goethe" was published, and Von Ruville's thorough and unprejudiced life of "William Pitt, Earl of Chatham." "Memoirs and Artistic Studies of Adelaide Ristori" the great Italian actress, taken from the Italian, discourses not only delightfully of her own stage experiences and the many celebrities she met in her long life, but includes literary studies of rôles she had made her own.

HISTORY.

The works of this class have in a measure been inspired by recent historical events in various parts of the world, including the United States. The Orient with its mysticism and its little known past, invited research from our scholars and historians. Dr. Griffiths, an authority on Japan, added "The Japanese Nation in Evolution" to his many works in this line, tracing steps in the progress of a great people; "Life in Japan," by Masuji Miyakawa, a naturalized American, is a storehouse of further reliable information, of the island kingdom. The last literary work of the late Jeremiah Curtin, noted linguist and scholar, entitled "The Mongols," represents many years of exhaustive research in the past chronicles of Eastern history; "The Awakening of China," from the pen of Dr. Martin describes in picturesque style the sweeping reforms made in the Celestial kingdom since the Boxer uprising. "The Dawn in Russia," by Henry W. Nevins is also a story of "awakening" told through lurid and cruel scenes in the Russian revolution. Coming nearer home we have Colonel Sargent's exhaustive treatise on "The Campaign of Santiago de Cuba" from the standpoint of a skilled observer and Captain Speed's "Union Cause in Kentucky, 1860-1865," a history of the struggle of the Union men to prevent their state seceding. Captain Mahan, an authority on army and navy matters, virtually gives a history of the old and new navy in "From Sail to Steam," and wrote of "Some Neglected Aspects of War," demonstrating the necessary and righteous part played by war in modern civilization. Colonel Dodge's history of the art of war as illustrated in the lives of "Great Captains" was finished with the third and fourth volumes, having for their subject, the campaigns of "Napoleon." Time and research were expended on Professor Hubert Aimes's "A History of Slavery in Cuba, 1511 to 1868." "French Colonists and Exiles in the United States" is Joseph Z. Rosengarten's tribute, gathered from reliable sources, to the high character and ability of the Huguenot and French colonists. A study in evidence, as to the source of our constitution is offered in "The Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence," by W. H. Hoyt.

English writers found congenial subjects in our early history and also in the history of Japan and other oriental nations. John A. Doyle's comprehensive work "English Colonies in America" came to an end with the fourth and fifth volumes discussing the Dutch settlement of New York, and other notable colonizations, and Mrs. Mary Marks in "England and America, 1763 to 1783," explains the American Revolution very impartially, although her view-point is an English one.

Books on Japan and kindred topics were "Japanese Rule in Formosa," by a member of the Japanese Diet, an exhaustive work in English concerning everything connected with the island; the second (and completing) volume of Sir Ian Hamilton's "A Staff Officer's Scrap-Book during the Russo-Japanese War," a thrilling story by an eye-witness; "The Near East," revealing the actual state of affairs in the mysterious Balkan Peninsula, published anonymously, and "Pictures from the Balkan," by J. Foster Fraser, artistic sketches with pen and camera; "The Truce in the East and its Aftermath," a sequel to "The Reshaping of the Far East," by H. L. Putnam Weale, pointing out new problems in Japan's future, and "The Natal Rebellion of 1906," by Captain Bosman, which truthfully recites the abortive struggle of the Natal native and the Zulu to overthrow the white man's government.

"Facts in Modern History," by Albert F. Pollard, brings out the significance which underlies the ordinary facts of portions of modern English history. "Modern Spain, 1815-1898," by Henry Butler Clark, an accomplished Spanish scholar and an Oxford professor, includes the Carlist wars, the Republic and the Restoration through the Spanish-American war. A study in combined strategy under the title "England in the Seven Years' War" is by Julian S. Corbett. The hold everything relating to the great Napoleon still has upon the reading public is exemplified in Wheeler and Bradley's "Napoleon and the Invasion of England" and "Bonaparte in Egypt" by Haji A. Browne. From the German we received part four of Blok's "History of the People of the Netherlands," from the French volume three of Hanotaux's "Contemporary France" and from the Italian the second part of Molmenti's "Venice" and Ferrero's "The Greatness and Decline of Rome."

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

America, Europe and the East attracted our travellers and men of letters. Henry James' recent impression of the United States are covered in "The American Scene"; one of Esther Singleton's fine literary compilations has for subject "Historic Landmarks of America"; Commander Peary's "Nearest the Pole" narrates in picturesque style, his expedition of 1905 and 1906; Dillon Wallace's "The Long Labrador Trail" is the story of another expedition into unexplored regions; "The Great Plains," presents the romance of western American exploration, warfare, and settlement, from 1527 to 1870, by Randall Parrish; the Jamestown tri-Centennial Exposition called forth Mrs. Pryor's "The Birth of the Nation," a history of the settlement of Virginia in 1607; "Mexico and her People" by Nevin Otto Winter and "The South Americans" by Dr. Albert Hale are both comprehensive volumes of the characteristics, customs, resources of the two countries.

Richard Harding Davis made a trip to "The Congo and Coasts of Africa" to investigate the atrocities reported in connection with the rubber and ivory trades; "Indiscreet Letters from Peking" tells the real story of the siege of Peking in 1900 by B. L. P. Weale, a man who witnessed and took part in all the steps of the Boxer uprising; the author of "Present-Day Egypt," Frederic C. Penfield, carries his readers to the countries beyond the "world's turnstile" in "East of Suez;" the Ottoman Empire had its complex civilization studied by Will Seymour Monroe, the result being "Turkey and the Turks;" "The Pulse of Asia" is Ellsworth Huntington's record of a year spent in daring exploration of the deserts of Chinese Turkestan. Martin Andrew Hume travelled "Through Portugal," and Philip S. Marden visited "Greece and the Ægean Islands" and Louis Van Norman, an American journalist, spent a year, during which he accumulated enthusiastic impressions, in "Poland, the Knight Among Nations." Lilian Whiting's charming monographs of Italy, had added to them "Italy, the Magic Land" and Barrett Wendell in "The France of To-day" sketched the social and religious conditions chiefly of modern France.

Reprints of English works are "Bohemia in London," pen portraiture of sordid living and picturesque homes in out-of-the-way London, by Arthur Ransome. Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Colquhoun studied "The Whirlpool of Europe"—Austria, Hungary and the Habsburgs. "The Scot of the Eighteenth Century" was one of the last works of Dr. Watson ("Ian Maclaren"). This with the books that follow were only seen in imported editions. Ida Woodward's "In and Around the Isle of Purbeck" revels in colored plates and historical and literary reminiscences; Southern Siam had its history related by P. A. Thompson under the title of "Lotus Land;" the frivolity, the splendour and the ending of "Court Life of the Second French Empire, 1852-1870," as described by an English journalist in a story of light and shade composed by a master hand. In "Literary Rambles in France," Matilda Betham Edwards sought out the homes of numerous French writers. "Queer Things About Persia" has a strongly humorous vein, along with rare information, written by Eustache de Lorey and Douglas Sladen. A veteran traveller is the author of "Across Widest Africa," A. H. Savage Landor, and "A Picnic Party in Wildest Africa" recounts the adventures of a party of friends on the unknown waters of the Upper Nile, the author being C. W. L. Bulpett. Ernest A. Bridge's name is on the title-page of "The Egyptian Sūdân and W. A. Grohman-Baillie's on that of "The Land in the Mountains," an account of the past and present of Tyrol.

LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY.

Among notable literary treatises from American writers "The Literature of Roguery," by Frank Wadleigh Chandler and "The Popular Ballad," by F. B. Gummere, both belonging to the Types of English Literature; Kuno Francke's "German Ideals of To-day" as revealed by its literature and life; a key to the prose dramas of Henrik Ibsen is offered by Jennette Lee in "The Ibsen Secret." "Inquiries and Opinions," by J. Brander Matthews, stands for a dozen literary papers on as many subjects; William Morton Payne discourses eloquently upon the religious and philosophical attitude as set forth in their works, of "The Greater English Poets of the Nineteenth Century;" "Days Off, and Other Digressions," by Henry J. Van Dyke, reflects the fascination of the out-door life; "Life in the Homeric Age," by Prof. Hillhouse of Yale, betrays research and a rare scholarly quality.

But few literary works from English writers were reprinted. Among the few of importance is a study of "The Novels of George Meredith," specially to be recommended to the admirers of the great English novelist, from the pen of Elmer James Bailey; "Dante and His Italy," by the Rev. Lonsdale Ragg; "Browning's Italy," a study of Italian life and art as seen in Browning's works, by Helen Archibald Clarke. With "The Later Nineteenth Century," Prof. Saintsbury, finished "Periods of European Literature." Essays on many diverse themes make up "The Measure of the Hours," by Maurice Maeterlinck, the great Belgian writer. That the Russian poets have been the pioneers of liberty and enlightenment is the point that is illustrated through Rosa Newmarch's "Poetry and Progress in Russia," "A Short History of Comparative Literature" comes from the French of Frédéric Loliée, covering from the earliest times to the present day.

Imported editions of leading English works found ample appreciation. To mention all that met with ready sale is not possible. The more prominent ones were nature essays by "Fiona Macleod" (pseudonym for William Sharp) entitled "Where the Forest Murmurs;" "Character and Comedy" essays characterized by a gentle, refined humor, by E. Verrall Lucas. Oliver Elton's "Modern Studies;" and "A Short History of Jewish Literature," by Israel Abrahams, from the fall of the temple to the era of emancipation (1786 C.E.).

One of the really great enterprises of 1907 was "The Catholic Encyclopedia," of which the first volume was published. It will be completed in fifteen volumes. Charles Evans's comprehensive "American Bibliography" was enriched by another volume, the fourth, including 1765 to 1773. Literary workers should possess themselves of "The English Catalogue of Books for 1906," "The Annual American Catalogue, 1906," Fletcher's "Annual Literary Index, 1906" and Wilson's "Cumulative Book Index, 1906,"—they will find them indispensable works of reference. The English "Who's Who for 1906" should find a place in every editorial room. "A Bibliography of Oliver Wendell Holmes" compiled by G. B. Ives and "Lincoln Bibliography" compiled by Judge Fish are useful tools to have at hand.

POETRY AND THE DRAMA.

The record of poetry is indeed slim. Cale Young Rice's "A Night in Avignon," is a charming drama of Petrarca and Laura, the beautiful woman he loved. Viereck's "Nineveh" attracted attention and criticism; "My Bunkie and Other Ballads" is a volume of graceful poems by Erwin Clarkson Garrett. Carolyn Wells compiled a very acceptable "A Vers de Société Anthology" and R. J. Cross "A Hundred Great Poems" running from Shakespeare to Swinburne. These are American poets. From English, Stephen Phillips "New Poems" are to be mentioned and Knight's "Victorian Anthology."

ART WORKS AND WORKS OF ART.

The finest art work from American sources was unquestionably "Old Spanish Masters" engraved by Timothy Cole. The book making details were as exquisite as the reproductions of Spanish masterpieces. "The Harrison Fisher Book" represented a charming collection of drawings in colors and black and white from a popular illustrator. The evolution of painting in America from colonial times to the present is traced in Charles H. Coffin's "The Story of American Painting," one of the notable books of the year. Kenyon Cox wrote appreciatingly of our "Painters and Sculptors;" Muther's "The History of Painting," translated from the German, might be mentioned here—a valuable work of reference for the artist or student. One of our most industrious writers, Elizabeth Luther Cary, is responsible for three art monographs, viz., "The Art of William Blake," "Honoré Daumier," including with a biography many of his caricatures and "The Works of James McNeill Whistler." Generously illustrated books, many rich in color plates, were characteristic of the holiday season. John C. Van Dyke's "Studies in Pictures" contains thirty-nine reproductions of photographs of famous pictures; "Portraits and Portrait Painting," by Estelle M. HurlI is equally attractive in the number and quality of its illustrations; Howells' delightful "Venetian Life" again appealed strongly to his many readers in a new holiday dress, whose chief adornments were twenty color plates reproducing Edmund H. Garrett's dainty water-colors. Both pen and kodak aided in the make-up of "The Castles and Keeps of Scotland," by F. R. Fraprie; "The Castles and Chateaux of Old Navarre," by Francis Miltoun; "Cathedrals and Cloisters of Midland France," by Elise W. Rose; Ricketts' "Art of the Prado," a survey of the art of this famous gallery, and Esther Singleton's "The Story of the White House." Penfield's lovely "Holland Sketches" is one of the most artistic examples of color printing recently sent out.

Limited imported editions were on the market of many illustrated works. Paul C. Helleu, known as the "French Gibson," and celebrated as an etcher claimed the admiration of the American public, through "A Gallery of Portraits" which includes the "counterfeit presentments" of several American girls—a dash of color heightens the effectiveness of his portraits. "Masterpieces in Color" a new art series indicates its scope by its title. The little books deal briefly with their subjects, each having eight reproductions in the colors of the original. So far four volumes have been issued: "Romney," "Turner," "Reynolds," and "Velasquez." The "Spanish Series" through the great number of its photographic reproductions, makes one perfectly familiar with famous Spanish galleries and artists. The initial volumes of this series are "The Prado," "The Escorial" and "Murillo."

Books on allied subjects of interest to collectors are two volumes in the Connoisseurs' Library, "European Enamels," by H. H. Cunynghame and "Glass" by Edward Dillon; and "How to Identify Old Chinese Porcelain" by Mrs. Willoughby Hodgson; "Old Oak Furniture" by Frederick Roe; and "A History of Tapestry," by W. G. Thomson, all fully illustrated and handsomely made.

We gather under this heading works on music and the drama. Lawrence Gilman, one of our most noted musical critics, is the author of a review of Debussy's "Pelléas et Mélisande," the opera based on Maeterlinck's play of that name. "The History of Music to the Death of Schubert," by J. Knowles Paine, tells its own story. The Essentials of Æthetics in Music, Poetry, Painting, Sculpture and Architecture," by G. L. Raymond, is a short path to acquiring a knowledge of the best in all art. "Franz Grillparzer and the Austrian Drama," by Gustav Pollak, one of our adopted citizens, is both critical and biographical. Mario Borsa's "The English Stage of To-Day," translated from the Italian, deals with the most modern development of the English theatre.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Nearly every question or problem engaging the interest of political economists has inspired a book or books. Those that follow are from American writers. F. Barnard Hawley, former treasurer of the American Economic Society, wrote a treatise on "Enterprise and the Productive Process" practical and non-technical; "Wage-Earners' Budgets" a study of standards and cost of living in New York City, comes from Mrs. Louise B. More; the problems of poverty and oppression, and successive attempts at solving them are described in "The Uprising of the Many" by E. E. Russell. "The Federal Power Over Carriers and Corporations" by E. P. Prentice. "The Dangers of Municipal Ownership" by R. P. Porter; A. N. Merritt's "Federal Regulation of Railway Rates," Hutchinson's "The Limit of Wealth," and Hendrick's "The Story of Life Insurance" all deal with vital subjects that are at present of daily discussion throughout the country.

"The Chemistry of Commerce," by Robert Kennedy Duncan, is a simple interpretation of some new chemistry in its relation to modern industry. "International Commercial Policies with Special Reference to the United States," by G. M. Fisk, is a volume of Citizen's Library of Economics, Politics and Sociology. "The Cause and Extent of the Recent Industrial Progress of Germany" is a well-considered paper by Earl Dean Howard. The negro problem was the subject of General Tremain's "Sectionalism Unmasked," of Booker Washington's "The Negro in the South," and Shufeldt's "The Negro, a Menace to American Civilization." "Practical Problems in Banking and Currency" represent the utterance of prominent bankers, financiers and economists. Bogart's "The Economic History of the United States" is in line with the preceding. The editor of The Review of Reviews, Dr. Albert Shaw, in "The Outlook for the Average Man" particularly considers the social, economic and political conditions in the United States; he also produced a work on "Political Problems of American Development." Henry Holt's "On the Civic Relations" is a rewriting of his popular "Talks on Civics." "Races and Immigrants in America" points out the necessity of the government assimilating the foreign races and teaching them self-government. Prof. Commons is the author. Jane Addams sets forth "Newer Ideals of Peace"; Robert Treat Crane considered "The State in Constitutional and International Law" and Paul S. Reinsch "American Legislatures and Legislative Methods." Two of our writers on the history of governments made special studies of British subjects. F. C. Howe investigated "The British City" and G. L. Beer "British Colonial Policy, 1754-1765." Socialism and kindred themes were the keynotes in a number of works; "The Red Reign," by Kellogg Durland, is a graphic description by a well-known American journalist of Russia in revolution. "Socialism Before the French Revolution" is a comprehensive history by W. B. Cuthrie; Prince Kropotkin in "The Conquest of Bread" points out the near approach to realization of the communistic and socialistic ideals; a criticism of "Orthodox Socialism" is offered by Ja. E. Le Rossignol delineating what the real ideals of socialism are, while W. H. Mallock, the English writer, made "A Critical Examination of Socialism" pointing out both its weak and strong points. Sociology was enlarged by Dr. Densmore's "Sex Equality," E. A. Ross's "Sin and Society," and W. I. Thomas's "Sex and Society."

"Heredity and Selection in Sociology," by another prominent Englishman, is a study from a biological and purely social standpoint. The difference between "Anarchism and Socialism" is emphatically described in a book of that name taken from the Russian of G. Plechanoff.

RELIGION AND PHILOSOPHY.

George Haven Putnam's scholarly work on "The Censorship of the Church of Rome and Its Influence upon the Production and Distribution of Literature," deals exhaustively with a subject that has an interest chiefly for the laity. Doctrinal works are in the minority. The topics discussed in the larger part of the religious literature, relate to somewhat worldly questions, such as the small congregations of the churches generally, the social side of the church, the church and the poor, etc. We name in the paragraph following a number of books, whose titles explain themselves, such as: "The Church and the Changing Order," by Dr. Shailer

Mathews; "Freedom in the Church, by Prof. Alexander Allen; "A Prophet in Babylon," a story of social service, by Rev. W. Ja. Dawson; "Positive Preaching and Modern Mind," the Lyman Beecher Lectures, by Dr. Forsyth; "The Missionary and His Critics," by Dr. Ja. L. Barton; and "The Re-Birth of Religion," by Algernon Sidney Crapsey, who was tried in 1906 for heresy. "A Genetic History of the New England Theology," by Frank Hugh Foster, is an excellent reference work, as is "Christian Theology in Outline," by Dr. W. A. Brown, and "Christianity and Its Bible," by H. F. Waring.

English works under this heading, aimed mainly to be helpful, and are constructive in criticism, rather than destructive. "The Creed of a Layman," by Frederic Harrison, one of the foremost English thinkers, is a broad statement of the philosophy representing the religion of humanity; "The Philosophy of Common Sense" is a companion volume to "The Creed of a Layman." "The New Theology," by the Rev. Reginald J. Campbell, while orthodox in character, is a broad restatement of Bible doctrines; "The Substance of Faith Allied with Science" seeks to point out complete harmony between science and religion and is the work of Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the great scientists of the day. The many volumes of sermons and of Biblical criticism we do not attempt to note.

SCIENCE.

Science proper received no notable additions. Percival Lowell contributed to a much ventilated subject in "Mars and Its Canals," and two other American writers wrote elementary treatises—one on "Wireless Telegraphy" coming from Prof. Kennelly, and one on "Evolution and Animal Life," by David Starr King and V. L. Kellogg. An account of Camille Flammarion's investigations in psychological research is embraced in "Mysterious Psychic Forces."

The science of education interested many American writers, producing unusually instructive monographs. Among the more important are W. E. Chancellor's "A Theory of Motives, Ideals and Values in Education;" "Studies and Observations in the School-Room," by H. E. Kratz; "Short Papers on American Liberal Education," by Andrew F. West; "History of the Pestalozzian Movement in the United States," by W. S. Monroe; "Growth and Education," by J. M. Tyler of Amherst, and "Industrial Education," a system of training for man entering upon trade and commerce, by Prof. H. S. Person of Dartmouth College.

AMERICAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1907.

THE great activity in the publishing world during the year just closed is plainly visible in the unusual number of titles listed by THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY through its "Weekly Record of New Publications." The books recorded in 1907 amounted to 9620, of which 8925 were new books and 695 new editions. These figures are greater than those of 1906 by 2481 titles, running far ahead of the best years in the past. A portion of this increase is to some extent to be accounted for by the extension of facilities of record reaching closer to completeness; but it nevertheless remains true that the output of 1907 outreached in unusual measure that of any previous year—a fact paralleled in the English records. In France, strange to note, book production was less active than in a decade past, the total running upwards of 1500 behind those of 1905. The French musician, on the other hand, was more active than usual, the number of Compositions exceeding by 1722 the number listed in 1906.

The influence of the great output may be traced in substantial additions to every division of our tables, with the exception of three classes. Literature and Collected Works and Poetry and the Drama, two departments that in 1906 exhibited so remarkable a decline attained even more than an average growth. In Literary Miscellany there was an increase of 192 titles, while poetical works were more than doubled—the figures going from 343 in 1906 to 697 in 1907. Fiction, still at the head of all other classes in figures, by an odd coincidence had a total exactly similar to that of 1906; but as only 21 of its 1171 books are new editions, against the 96 new editions of the previous year, we may justly claim an increase in new novels. Theology and Religion was not displaced from its old position next to Fiction, having 255 additions to its credit. Biography, History and Description, under which headings we gather examples of our most scholarly and permanent literature, in spite of larger totals than ever before failed to rise above former places in our tables. Law went up to the third place after being in the fifth, and Juvenile and Education fell to the seventh and fifth from the third and fourth. In both of the latter classes there were fewer books than in 1906, when both showed a gain. In the first there was a loss of 10, and in the second a loss of 54; and in works of reference a loss of 20. Fine Arts which fell below the average in 1906, made a far better showing with an increase of 99—that is 323 against 224. Out of the whole total of 9620 books recorded, 4312 were received at this office; the balance represents titles gathered from copyright entries, from information sent us by publishers and in various ways.

Table No. 1, that follows, illustrates the above facts very clearly, and gives the figures of 1906 for comparison with those of 1907.

second, those by English or other foreign authors made in this country according to the demands of the copyright law, and third, the books in English, imported bound or in sheets, these three classes comprising the output of books of the United States in 1907. The first and second classes are almost all copyright books. This table, like the former, scarcely claims to be precise in its division, as it is impossible always to trace the history of a work, from its author to its final publication. The table shows 6517 books by American authors against 5093 of 1906; 1319 books by English or other foreign authors (made here) against 1072 of 1906, and 1784 books or sheets imported, against 974 of 1906. The reprints were, as usual, the largest in Fiction, amounting to 353, far less, however, than in several previous years, when almost double that number of English or other foreign novels were reprinted. The most evident fact demonstrated by this table is the great number of books by American authors published in 1907 in all classes of literature. A second fact more observable than in several past years, is the few reprints of English works in comparison with the importations, which are double those of 1906, and cannot be accounted for by the increased activity of the year.

COPYRIGHT BILL.

A bill to amend and consolidate the acts respecting copyright was introduced on Thursday, May 31, 1906 (59th Congress, 1st session); referred to the Committees on Patents and printed (Senate bill No. 6330 and H. R. bill No. 19853).

Revised bills were reported and printed as follows: By the Senate Committee, January 29, 1907 (S. bill 8190. 36 pp.); by the House Committee, January 30, 1907 (H. R. bill 25133. 35 pp.). BOOK PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND IN 1907.

THE total number of new books recorded for 1907 by the London Publishers' Circular, is 9,914, or 1,311 more than for 1906. This increase was not confined to any particular publishing season, but was spread over the whole year—November showing a decrease which was made up by October. Fiction decreased slightly, and it is noticeable that reprints form a larger proportion than usual in this class. Religion and philosophy increased by 213, law by 145, history and biography by 232, poetry by 69, medicine by 63, while a large increase took place in arts and sciences. The other classes remain proportionately very much of the same size as before.

The analytical table prepared by The Publishers' Circular makes the following showing:

FRENCH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1907.

THE book production in France during 1907, according to the records of the Bibliographie de la France, was 10,785, showing a decrease, as compared with the total of 1906, of 113, or 1631 less than in 1905. The number of musical compositions recorded in 1907 was 7648 or 1722 more than in 1906. The number of engravings, lithographs and photographs registered in 1907 was 832 or 222 less than in the previous year.

It should be borne in mind that in order to determine the exact number of books as distinguished from pamphlets, leaflets, theses and similar minor publications it would be safe to deduct between 2000 and 3000 titles. In 1906, for example, the difference between the records of the Bibliographie de la France, the official booktrade journal which records all printed matter without regard to its merits as literature, and those of the Bureau of the Ministry of the Interior, which in its records takes cognizance of only the more stable element in the French booktrade production, amounted to 2431 titles. In 1905 the difference amounted to exactly 2942 titles and so on back in the same proportion.

One rather singular feature of these yearly compilations, says The Bookman, is the comparative absence of change in the number of books represented in the lists. There were thirty titles in 1907, and there were thirty titles in 1906. Going back year by year we find, respectively, twenty-nine, thirty-one, thirty-two, twenty-eight and twenty-nine; or practically an average of thirty books a year for seven years. The question of sex in regard to the authorship of the best-sellers, on the other hand, varies considerably. In 1906 it was almost an even break. In 1907 will be found the names of twenty-five men and seven women. In explanation it must be said that "The Mystery" was the result of a collaboration between two men and "The Princess Virginia" of the collaboration of a man and a woman. While American writers largely predominate, we are inclined to pass lightly over the question of nationality. It is better so. We are not entirely ready to concede Mrs. Burnett as an English author, nor can we expect Britons to relinquish all claims to Mrs. Williamson on account of her American birth. Then it is understood that the Canadian, while speaking of himself as a British subject, in his relations with his neighbors of the United States, is just as aggressive in proclaiming himself an American when on the other side of the Atlantic. So what should we say of Gilbert Parker and Ralph Connor?

SELLING DIRECT TO CONSUMERS.

THE committees appointed by the Stationers' Board of Trade and the New York Stationers' Association to make arrangements with manufacturers and jobbers not to sell goods direct to consumers have completed their labors, and report that they believe that they have practically secured from the manufacturers their consent to discontinue soliciting business from consumers direct.

As the report of the sub-committee would indicate, the manufacturers will give their assistance to the retail stationers to enable them to retain the consuming trade, and if the Stationers' Association can arrange with the jobbers of New York City to adjust their prices, which will enable retailers to compete for the consuming trade, the conditions of this trade will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Inasmuch as the members of the committee appointed by the Stationers' Board of Trade are members of the Stationers' Association, it was further suggested by the chairman that every member of this committee would be pleased to aid the Stationers' Association of New York in the matter of confining the consumers' business with the retail stationers.

THE POOR RICHARD CLUB.

THE Poor Richard Club held its second annual reunion on January 17, at the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia. There was present a notable gathering of advertising men and advertisers, covers being laid for several hundred and a number of unique features were introduced, marking the development of advertising and tracing its connection back to the time of Franklin himself. Among the speakers were Arthur Brisbane, editor of the New York Journal; T. T. Williams, advertising manager of the Hearst publications; Cyrus K. Curtis, of the Curtis Publishing Company; Jay B. Lippincott, of J. B. Lippincott Company; Senator Boies Penrose, who spoke on "Postal Reforms;" Governor E. S. Stuart, of Leary's; the Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, whose address was on "Morality in Business Life," and Mayor Reyburn of Philadelphia.

PAPER-BOUND FICTION NOT SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

THE Supreme Court of the United States, on January 20, decided in favor of the Government the test case of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. vs. the Postmaster-General, involving the right of the Post Office Department to collect damages on account of a former effort of the firm to enjoin the department from enforcing an order excluding certain of its publications from the privileges of the law governing second-class mail matter. Although the decision was in favor of the Government, it was not the full extent of its claim. The court's opinion was announced by Justice Day.

STATIONERS DINE.

THE annual dinners of the Chicago and New York Stationers, from all accounts, were successful and most enjoyable occasions. The Chicago Stationers' Association met for the sixth year at the Auditorium on the 11 inst. Fletcher B. Gibbs, the president of the association, after a brief address congratulating the association upon its growth and usefulness, introduced W. P. Williams as toastmaster. Among the speakers were the Rev. Dr. J. A. Rondthaler, the Hon. Charles S. Cutting and W. J. Kennedy. The Stationers' Association of New York, gave its third annual dinner at the Hotel Astor, on the 9th inst., attended by upwards of four hundred members and guests. Theodore L. C. Gerry, the president of the association, acted as toastmaster and the Rev. S. Parker Cadman, the Hon. Alfred R. Page, John G. Nicholson, William C. Popper, Abner K. Pratt, Charles G. Falconer and Henry C. Bainbridge helped to entertain the company.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CHARLES EMORY SMITH, editor of the Philadelphia Press and former Postmaster-General, died suddenly on January 19. Mr. Smith was born at Mansfield, Conn., on February 18, 1842. His boyhood was spent on a farm, but in 1849 his family removed to Albany, N. Y., where he began his education. In 1856 he was engaged on The Albany Evening Transcript. After service on several other Albany newspapers he went to Philadelphia to take charge of The Philadelphia Press, John W. Forney's paper. In 1890 he was appointed Minister to Russia, and in 1898, President McKinley chose him as his Postmaster-General. He retired from this post in 1902. Mr. Smith's administration of the post office was marked by the establishment of the rural free delivery system.

JAMES BREWER EDMONDSON, who for twenty years was prominently connected with the retail booktrade of Chicago, died on January 14, at Oak Park, Ill., about forty years of age. As a lad Edmondson entered the employ of the Chicago branch of the Methodist Book Concern. Later he was connected with the Congregational Sunday-school and Publishing Society, and the American Baptist Publication Society, when he became partner in the firm of Forbes & Co., all of Chicago. About ten or fifteen years ago Edmondson took charge of the Chicago business of Fleming H. Revell Company, resigning his position in 1906 to develop a Sunday-school supply business. Unfortunately his health broke down a year later and he never recovered. Mr. Edmondson was noted for the earnestness of purpose and enthusiasm which he brought to every task. This quality and his wide knowledge of books made him one of the most successful bookmen of the West.

JOHN ORDRONAU, lawyer and physician, died on January 20, at Glen Head, Long Island, N. Y. Dr. Ordronau was born August 3, 1830, in New York City. He was a graduate of Dartmouth College, the Law School of Harvard University and the National Medical College. Soon after the war between the States broke out he was appointed a surgeon to examine recruits in Brooklyn, N. Y. While thus engaged he published "Hints on Health in Armies," the first American work on military hygiene, and a "Manual for Military Surgeons on the Examination of Recruits and Discharge of Soldiers." Subsequently he wrote "The Legal Status of the Medical Profession in New York," "Report on Expert Testimony," "Hallucination Consistent with Reason," "On Suicide," "The Jurisprudence of Medicine in Its Relation to the Law of Contracts, Torts and Evidence," "Moral Insanity," "On Expert Testimony in Judicial Proceedings," "The Proper Legal Status of the Insane," "Legislation in New York Relating to the Insane," "Institutes of Equity as Revealed Through Its Maxims," "Judicial Aspects of Insanity," "The Plea of Insanity as an Answer to an Indictment," "Judicial Problems Relating to the Disposal of Insane Criminals," and "Constitutional Legislation in the United States."

EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN, the poet, died suddenly on January 18, at his home, 2643 Broadway, New York City. Mr. Stedman was born October 8, 1833, in Hartford, Conn. He entered Yale in 1849, where he excelled in Greek and Latin composition, and took a prize, but owing to his impetuous temperament he was suspended in his third year, and did not return. Many years afterward Yale University, proud of the achievements of Stedman, reinstated him in the class of 1858 and gave him the degree of Master of art. After leaving Yale, Stedman found his way at once into journalism, becoming editor of the Norwich Tribune when he was but nineteen years old. He left the Tribune to become editor of the Winsted Herald, and after several years' experience came to New York City. He was at first a contributor to the Tribune and other papers. In 1859 "The Diamond Wedding," a satirical poem, was published in the Tribune, and a little later "How Old Brown Took Harper's Ferry." The latter poem was a great favorite with Mrs. Browning, and Emerson included it in his "Parnassus." Before the end of 1859 Stedman had a place on the staff of the Tribune, and the next year he published his first volume of "Poems, Lyrics and Idyls." In 1861 he joined the staff of the World and went to the front as war correspondent. He returned to New York in 1864, in which year "Alice of Monmouth, an Idyl of the Great War," was published. This poem immediately found popular favor. Shortly after the close of the war Mr. Stedman left the newspaper business and went into banking. His idea in doing this was that he might have more time for independent literary work. In 1869 he became a member of the Stock Exchange. In the course of ten years he had made money and at the same time had produced his "Victorian Poets." He continued on the floor of the exchange up to 1900, when he sold his seat. Among his other poetical works are "The Blameless Prince," "Hawthorne and Other Poems" and "Lyrics and Idyls, with Other Poems," published in 1872. His critical works include "Poets of America" and "The Nature and Elements of Poetry." He edited several anthologies and lectured frequently at the large universities. He succeeded James Russell Lowell as president of the American Copyright League.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Citizen's Union is the title of a monthly periodical published by the Citizen's Union at 252 Fourth avenue, New York City, "to establish and maintain continuous communication between the City Committee and the General Membership of the Citizen's Union." The subscription price is fifty cents a year and five cents a copy.

The School Journal, founded in 1870 by the late E. L. Kellogg as an educational weekly for the benefit of New York City public school teachers, and since 1874 published continuously as a periodical of national circulation, has been discontinued as a weekly and will hereafter appear as a monthly magazine. Its withdrawal from its old field leaves the Journal of Education of New York City, so far as we are aware, the only weekly newspaper in the United States devoted to the advancement of education as a profession.

HENRY HOLT has written for Putnam's Monthly a series of papers describing a visit to the West. This visit was made last summer; it occupied six weeks, and involved a journey of eight thousand miles, the starting point being the writer's country home, at Burlington, Vermont, and the remotest places reached being Los Angeles and Vancouver. This was Mr. Holt's first visit to the Southwest, California, and the Northwest, and his picturesque descriptions and keen comments have the charm and value of first impressions.

THE leading article in the International Studio for February is a fully illustrated estimate of the work of Augustus Saint-Gaudens by Talcott Williams. The Lincoln statue in Chicago, and the Adams monument in Washington are reproduced as tinted inserts, suitable for framing. Particular interest inheres in the observations Dr. Williams makes upon the much discussed eagle and double eagle of 1907 by the sculptor. He points out that both these are medals rather than coins in spirit and traces the eagle "with trousers" to an ancient Ptolemaic type. The coin of Ptolemy Euergetes reproduced alongside the eagle on the ten-dollar piece makes a striking comparison.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Ernst Besser's Sons have been divided into two corporations of which Besser's will continue the wholesale and retail business in stationery, school supplies, office supplies, toys, etc., at 7 W. Huron and 544 Main Streets. They are practically the successors of the old firm having taken over its business and assumed all liabilities. The other corporation will be known as the Besser Fireworks Company to deal only in fireworks and specialties for July 4. Oscar J. Besser and Minnie B. Besser are president and treasurer and secretary, respectively, of both concerns.

DAYTON, O.—The World's Events Publishing Company, formerly at Dansville, N. Y., has removed to this city, where it has offices on the thirteenth floor of the United States Building.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Edmund D. Brooks, bookseller and importer, has removed from 695 First Avenue to more commodious quarters in the new Handicraft Guild Building, 89 Tenth Street South.

NEW YORK CITY.—F. H. Knapp, for years connected with the Century Company, has started out for himself and opened a book, music and stationery store at 146 Hamilton Place, near 144th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. Though still a young man, Mr. Knapp was regarded as one of the veterans in the service of the Century Company. He was only a lad when, at the instance of his Sunday-school teacher, he applied to Roswell Smith, then President of the old Scribner's Monthly, for work. Mr. Smith at first wasn't much inclined to avail himself of young Knapp's services; indeed, he tried to discourage the youngster from taking up business at so early an age. Knapp at last got the coveted place and steadily worked his way up. At the date of his withdrawal he was the manager of the subscription book department, one of the most important in the organization, this fine position being the culmination of twenty-eight years of continuous labor, in which he performed about every service from sweeping and dusting to the transaction of important details. Mr. Knapp is well-equipped to give a good account of himself in the new and independent field which he has entered, and he will undoubtedly realize his ambition to establish and maintain one of the best small stores in the metropolis.

NEW YORK CITY.—The following firms that were made homeless by the fire which destroyed the Parker Building have found quarters in the building at No. 239 W. Thirtieth Street: D. C. Heath & Co., The Judge Company and the Eaton-Hurlbut Paper Co. The Silver-Burdett Company is in the same building.

NEW YORK CITY.—Robert Grier Cooke, publisher, has moved from 307 Fifth Ave. to 420 Fifth Ave.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—John Heise has established himself at 410 O. C. S. Bank Building, to deal in rare books, autograph letters and prints.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

"STREET'S PANDEX OF THE NEWS," a weekly cumulative index and digest of the newspapers of the United States, edited by Arthur I. Street, and published from the Hartford Building, Chicago, Ill., enters upon another year of usefulness. This publication is cumulated monthly, quarterly and annually.

A NEW monthly magazine for booklovers, The Bibliophile, is announced for March next, with offices at Thanet House, Strand, London, Eng. Among the contributors named are F. T. Bullen, Arthur Symons, Cyril Davenport, Sidney Lee, A. W. Pollard, and H. B. Wheatley. The price of the magazine is to be sixpence the number.

The Bulletin of Bibliography and Magazine Subject-Index for January (v. 5, No. 44) contains the quarterly subject-index to sixty-two magazines; the third part of a "Reading List on Modern Dramatists," by Clara A. Mullikin; the first part, dealing with the American issues, of a Bibliography of Literary Annuals and Gift Book, American and English," by F. A. Faxon; part iv. of the second edition of Robert Morrill McCurdy's "Bibliography of Holidays;" the seventh part of Nathaniel L. Goodrich's bibliography of "Prose Fiction," and the department of changes in the magazine field entitled "Births and Deaths in the Periodical World."

BOWES & BOWES, Cambridge, Eng., have just brought out a second edition of George J. Gray's valuable "Bibliography of the Works of Sir Isaac Newton, with a list of books illustrating his works." This book was first brought out in 1888, in an edition limited to 120 copies, and has long become scarce and much sought after. To meet the demand for a reprint the author has thoroughly revised the work and has made some important additions, such as two issues of the first edition of the "Principia," two differently dated copies of the second edition of the "Optics," six varying issues of the "Commercium Epistolicum," etc., giving information now printed for the first time. The notes by Mr. Gray are informing and interesting throughout. (6+80 p. frontispiece, sq. 8° bds., 5s. net.)

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE EVIL OF SELLING DIRECT.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt in to-day's mail of a letter from one of our branch houses from which I quote as follows:

"I gave our customer quotations on some volumes of Scribner's 'Historical Series for Bible Students.' I enclosed him a list and quoted him $1.25, postpaid, and this morning received the following note on the bottom of my letter. 'You are not up with the times—the publishers are offering these at $1 per volume.' He enclosed offer from Scribner where they offer this series at $1 per volume, prepaid $1 per month. You know this is the same old proposition of the Christian Literature Company. Unless we buy an unusually large quantity, they cost us 94 cents per volume f. o. b. New York. If we buy 25 copies of one volume they give us 10 per cent. extra, provided we pay them in 30 days.

This is really only one of many similar instances which have come up at our different houses in connection with orders for this series of books. It seems unfortunate that there is not a more thoroughly consistent and businesslike understanding between the publishers and booksellers. Very truly yours,

CHAS. M. ROE,

Business Manager American Baptist Pub. Soc.

PHILADELPHIA, January 4, 1908.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

F. J. SLOANE, formerly with A. S. Barnes & Co., will hereafter represent The Cupples & Leon Co.

THE LIFE PUBLISHING COMPANY announce a new story by John A. Mitchell, author of "Amos Judd" and "The Pines of Lory" as well as a new volume of humorous sketches by James Montgomery Flagg.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY offer for sale, prior to removal of their plant, upward of one hundred sets of plates, mainly fiction, at $25 per set, many of which might prove profitable if added to other publishers' lists.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY will publish next month a volume on "Modern Artists," by Christian Brinton, who will cover the field from Fragonard to Zuloaga, with illustrations in colors, photogravure and half tones.

THE announcement that Louis Tracy's new novel, "The Wheel o' Fortune," had been published in book form by E. J. Clode, was, we are informed, premature. As a matter of fact, the novel is now appearing serially and will not be brought out in book form until late in the year.

T. C. & E. C. JACK, London, announce a series of Tudor Facsimile Texts of old plays and other printed and manuscript rarities. These will be brought out in exact collotype reproductions in folio and quarto under the general editorship and supervision of John S. Farmer, assisted by craftsmen of repute and standing.

THE OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY will issue early in February a novel by Clarence E. Mulford, entitled "The Orphan." It is a story of frontier life, during the days of the great cattle rangers, and is filled with stirring incident, and crisp dialogue. A very pretty love romance runs through its pages. "Bar 20," the successful story published by Mr. Mulford last year, is in its fourth edition.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish immediately "London Parks and Gardens," by the Hon. Mrs. Evelyn Cecil, with colored illustrations, by Lady Victoria Manners; "Flower Grouping in English, Scotch and Irish Gardens," with articles by the Hon. Emily Lawless, Rose Kingsley and others, and with notes and sketches in color by Margaret Waterfield, author of "Garden Color"; "The New Theology and the Old Religion," by the Rev. Dr. Charles Gore; also, "Municipal Ownership," by Leonard Darwin.

L. C. PAGE & Co. announce as one of their most important spring books a volume of essays entitled "The Making of Personality," by Bliss Carman. Mr. Carman is perhaps better known as a poet than as an essayist, although his three earlier volumes of essays—"The Friendship of Art," "The Kinship of Nature" and "The Poetry of Life"—have been widely read. The present volume is the most serious prose work Mr. Carman has yet done. It is original, independent and liberal in its thought, combining philosophical depth with literary delicacy.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce three nature books that should interest all lovers of that healthful kind of literature. The first to appear will be "Our Trees: How to Know Them," with 140 photographs from nature, by Arthur I. Emerson, and text by Professor Clarence M. Weed; the second will be "Wild Flower Families," a popular book by Clarence M. Weed, with numerous half-tone illustrations from photographs; and the third will be "The Small Country Place," by Samuel T. Maynard, containing some 75 illustrations and a number of line drawings.

Two volumes of miscellanies from the pen of Charles Dickens are to be published next month by Chapman & Hall as part of their National Edition of Dickens. These miscellanies, gathered from the periodicals to which the novelist contributed them, have never before been included in any collection of his works. A great quantity of the material is now identified for the first time—notably that which comes from the files of Household Words. In those of The Examiner also have been found a number of contributions never identified by previous searchers.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on the 31st inst., "My Lady of Cleve," by Percy J. Hartley, a love story in days when swords flashed, spurs jingled and people sometimes died very suddenly; "The Mother of the Man," a story of real live people, by Eden Phillpotts; "Extton Manor," by Archibald Marshall, a story of English country house life; also, "On the Knees of the Gods," a story of the golden days of Athens, by Anna Bowman Dodd, all of which have been already described by us. The title of Will Lillibridge's forthcoming new novel has been changed from "The Lodestone" to "The Dissolving Circle."

MISS ALICE BROWN's latest novel, "Rose MacLeod," which is now appearing serially in the Atlantic Monthly, will be one of the leading books of fiction on the spring list of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and is said to be Miss Brown's masterpiece. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will also bring out this spring a volume by Henry D. Sedgwick, entitled "The New American Type, and Other Essays," and a volume on "Tragedy," by Professor Ashley H. Thorndike in Professor Neilson's The Types of English Literature Series. George S. Wasson has changed the title of his forthcoming collection of stories, and the volume will be called "Home from Sea" instead of "The Rote," as previously announced.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just brought out "A Princess of Intrigue—Mme. de Longueville and Her Times," by H. Noel Williams, in which he traces the eventful career of the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Henri de Bourbon and sister of the great Condé. The period covered—the last years of Louis XIII.'s reign and the early part of that of le Grande Monarque—is one of the most fascinating in French history, all the great figures of that time playing a part in the story and being presented with picturesque understanding. They have also just ready the latest issue of "Burke's Peerage," that corpulent, red-uniformed volume, dignified without and full of nobilities, dignities and respectabilities within.

A. J. SAALFIELD, the energetic head of The Saalfeld Publishing Company, was the originator of the use of muslin in this country as material upon which to print books, and his firm now has one of the most comprehensive and popular lines of any in the field. This year, however, he has produced still another novel line of children's books. This time the books are printed on the softest of felt, delightful to the touch, and sure to be appreciated by the babies. They are printed in bright colors, large type, and are bound to be among the most popular and best-selling of all book novelties. The Saalfeld line is devoted largely to juveniles, and has made for itself an enviable reputation.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will publish at once a work entitled "Optimism, a Real Remedy," by Horace Fletcher, whose original investigations in the science of absorbing food into the human system have gained for him the interest and support of men of science throughout the civilized world, and have added a word, "Fletcherizing," to our vocabulary. The present volume, without dwelling on his theories at length, bespeaks the attention of those who are well, that they may keep well, of those not in robust health, that they may attain it, and justifies its title completely, proving that the world is a better place to live in than even the most sanguine of us had imagined. It will be prettily decorated and attractively printed, in the general style of Mrs. Hubbard's "Religion of Cheerfulness."

JOHN MURRAY will publish shortly what should be an interesting work, namely, "The Life and Letters of John Delane of The Times," arranged by his nephew, Arthur Irwin Dasent. Mr. Delane's diaries and correspondence, during his long tenure of the editorial chair of the London Times, cover the period between Sir Robert Peel's return to office and Disraeli's last administration. They describe at first hand and from trustworthy contemporary sources every epoch-making event from 1841 to 1877. "It is well known," as one of colleagues in writing his obituary notice said, "on the best authority, that Delane never was a writer; he never even attempted to write anything, except what he wrote better than most writers could do—reports and letters;" it is, therefore that the publication of his letters will be looked forward to with eager interest. His correspondents included men and women prominent in political, literary, artistic and social life and their letters are said to present a microcosm of English society as it existed during Delane's career.

LAIRD & LEE, Chicago, have brought out a revised and enlarged edition of "Hoyle's Standard Games, Bridge Whist and 500," adapted to present usages; also, "How to be Happy," by Clara Gold, containing instruction, counsel and advice for old and young, with extracts from famous writers in prose and verse. Early in February they will have ready "The Standard Domestic Science Cook Book," with upwards of 1,000 recipes from famous chefs, expert caterers and housekeepers, arranged so that any desired recipe may be found at once. In March they expect to have ready a new detective story by Lawrence L. Lynch, entitled "Man and Master," which is said to be full of excitement from cover to cover. In April they will publish "The Strenuous Career, or, Short Steps to Success," by Rev. Madison C. Peters, the well-known preacher, who, in this book covers most of the problems of modern life. During the summer they will publish "Letters to a Business Girl," by Florence W. Saunders, a series of letters from a mother, a practical business woman, to her daughter, containing useful information for every girl just entering the world of business; "The Little Masqueraders," twelve pages of American history in pictures, and "Rube and Ruth's Adventures," illustrating in pictures the adventures of a boy and girl, their sports, etc., both for young people; "Baby Goose Goes to Town," "The Gosling's Trip with a Dog and a Cat," and "Peggy and the Kittens," three attractive books for children, made up from Fannie E. Ostrander's famous "Baby Goose Book"; "Freddie and Santa Claus in Circus Land," adventures in marvelous Circus Land which will fascinate little ones; "Diana's Diary," a book of solid fun, by F. W. PICK-UPS.

THE GREEN BOOK CLERK.—"Here's a toast to the green bookstore clerk," said the woman shopper. "I find it is only through his connivance that I can get the books I want in the desired binding. All day I have been looking for certain books which I wish to send to the Philippine Islands as Christmas presents. I wanted Stevenson's 'Merry Men,' Hardy's 'Woodlanders,' and Meredith's 'Amazing Marriage.' Into bookstore after bookstore I went, asking for them, but everywhere the answer was the same. Nobody handled them outside the complete set of those authors' works. Finally an accommodating clerk gave me a useful hint. 'Just wait till after Christmas,' he said, 'and you'll be able to get as many copies as you want. A lot of green clerks will be taken on everywhere then. In their ignorance they always break a lot of these sets, so after the holidays you can pick up odd volumes of anything you want in the best binding.' And that is why I'm blessing the green clerk, who does through carelessness what the experienced man cannot be moved to do by the most persuasive arguments."—New York Sun.

The Mother of the Man

The New Dartmoor Romance

By EDEN PHILLPOTTS

Author of

"CHILDREN OF THE MIST"

"THE FARM OF THE DAGGER"

So quietly and naturally does this story open, there is such freedom from a straining for effect, that only by degrees is the knowledge brought home to the reader that here is a novel of rare power. No one who appreciates real skill and strength in story-telling can miss its charm. It is not a machine-made novel, but the work of an artist. Passionate Ives Pomeroy; Jill Bolt, cold-blooded and calculating; Cawker, the unabashed hypocrite; vindictive old Codd, and above all, the wise, wonderful mother—these are not types nor the shadows which pass current for characters in most novels. They are real, live people, loving and hating, headstrong or scheming, big hearted or mean, just as their natures made them.

SOMEHOW GOOD

A New Novel by WILLIAM DE MORGAN, Author of Alice-for-Short

After years of separation from his wife, the hero, during a complete suspension of memory and loss of identity, accidentally finds shelter in her home. This situation seems very simple, but the developments are far from simple, and form a story of complicated motives and experiences which holds the reader closely.

An almost grown-up daughter, ignorant of the situation, heightens the tension of the plot, and furnishes her share of two charming stories of young love.

That this third volume by Mr. De Morgan appears within less than a year and a half of his first, may arouse anxiety on the part of his admirers lest he be overproducing. But before he published his first novel, he had several completely written, and several others carefully sketched out. So far from "Somehow Good" being diluted work it is, in the unanimous opinion of the publishers' readers, an advance upon anything of Mr. De Morgan's yet published. (12mo, 565 pp. $1.75.)

"THAT PRINTER OF UDELL'S"

A spell-binding story of love, mystery, heroic daring and moral courage. It will stir the warm blood of any true-hearted man or woman who reads it.

PRAISED EVERYWHERE

"There are many bits of excellent description in the course of the story, and an atmosphere as fresh and sweet and free from modern grime as one would breathe on the Ozark trails themselves."—New York Times.

"Amidst all the ordinary literature of the day, it is as a pure, white stone set up along a dreary road of unending monotony."—Buffalo Courier.

"It is filled with laughs and tears, this beautiful story, and no one can help laughing or crying in turn, if his heart is right."—Pueblo Chieftain.

"One of the best novels written in the English language for over a decade. * * * Good luck to the man who can put upon paper so fine a novel of American life."—Pittsburg Press.

"One of the really good books of the year. . . . A powerful and analytical study of character."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"The people who move within it are so human that the reader of their story will pick them out for like and dislike, as if he had really known them in the flesh, rather than in the pages of a book."—Chicago Journal.

Why Ralph Connor Endures

☛ The St. Paul Dispatch struck the keynote when it said: "Ralph Connor has a style all his own, invariably a fascinating background, and he gets near to earth." Three good reasons why his books are steadily increasing in demand each year, and why the two-million mark is now a near reality.

☛ Nine years ago the editor of The Globe Democrat, of St. Louis, prophesied: " 'Ralph Connor' is some man's nom de plume—the world will insist upon knowing whose—he will not long be able to conceal his identity."

☛ Today "Ralph Connor" is known the world around as the pen name of Charles W. Gordon, an author whose works are enduring and who, by many, is considered the real representative American novelist of the twentieth century.

Ralph Connor's Latest The Doctor

205th Thousand

We are able to give no real idea of the intense and gripping interest that the story arouses. One almost feels at the end of the story that one's own best friend is gone."—Rochester Herald.

"THE TRAVELLERS' NUMBER" OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

A NEW special number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will be issued this year under date of February 29th, to be known as "The Travellers' Number." The principal object of this issue will be the exploitation of Competitive Lines in the mutual interest of publisher and buyer. This field has not heretofore been adequately covered in trade journalism, and our purpose is to make this issue one of commanding importance to the trade. A number of new features will make it unusually valuable for reference throughout the season. It will reach every possible buyer of competitive lines throughout the country.

Sufficient advertising support having already been pledged, no increase in schedule rates will be made.
